One fugitive wounded

Manhunt opens for Ray, five other escapees

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, serving 99 years for the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was hunted early today with five other fugitives from Brushy Mountain State Prison in one of East Tennessee's most intensive manhunts.

"We'll do our best to bring him back one way or the other," said state Correction Commissioner C. Murray Henderson, when asked by a reporter if he felt Ray could be caught without shots being fired.

The comment came about eight hours after the Friday night escape.

The escape, Henderson said, was obviously well planned — and it probably took the prisoners as much as 10 minutes. They climbed over the prison's 10-foot stone wall, beneath a 2,300-volt power line, and between two guard towers 70 feet apart.

A seventh fugitive was shot in the leg as he scaled the wall on a makeshift ladder of light pipe while other prisoners diverted guards' attention with a mock fight.

One of the fugitives had access to the pipe because he worked in the prison plumbing shop, Henderson said.

The wounded prisoner was recaptured immediately and treated at a hospital in nearby Oak Ridge for a leg wound inflicted by a .22-caliber rifle bullet.

Henderson said officials had the fugitives "pretty well boxed in" with guards, bloodhounds, state troopers, FBI agents and agents of the Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification.

He also said two highway patrol helicopters would join the search.

President Carter ordered Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell to give state officials whatever assistance he could and FBI Director Clarence Kelley personally ordered his agents into the case Friday night.

Guards said it is virtually impossible to remain a fugitive for long from the isolated prison, 40 miles northwest of Knoxville. They say the only two ways out are across a rugged, rattlesnake-infested mountain — the route chosen by the fugitives — or down a road past Warden Stoney Lane's house through Petros.

The manhunt involved 125 prison guards, state troopers, FBI and Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification agents, and officers from at least six counties.

State troopers manned at least four roadblocks on the road, and guards with bloodhounds tracked the fugitives on three separate trails early today through the mountains.

"We got close enough that we could hear them in the woods," said Don Daugherty, a guard handling four bloodhounds, "but they got away."

Freight trains moving near the area also were checked.

King, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964 for his civil rights activities, was gunned down on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel in Memphis on April 4, 1968.

Ray was arrested in London, England, where he had fled after leaving a rifle with his fingerprints outside a Memphis rooming house, across from the Lorraine Motel.

After a lengthy stay in the Shelby County jail in Memphis, Ray pleaded guilty on his 41st birthday and was sentenced, March 10, 1969, to prison, a sentence he began in Nashville.

Almost immediately, however, he sought to recant his admission in the King slaying, claiming he was a dupe in a conspiracy to kill King that involved a

Supper club fire report issued

Mystery of two missing bodies ended

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) — The fire which killed 161 persons at the Beverly Hills Supper Club May 28 burned a "considerable time" before being discovered, according to Kentucky State Fire Marshal Warren Southworth.

Southworth said Friday the results of an on-site investigation indicate the fire started in a "concealed area" around the club's Zebra Room.

He said its cause probably was electrical in nature, but he declined to elaborate. An insurance investigator reported earlier to The Associated Press that a short circuit in a decorative fountain ignited the fire. Southworth declined comment on that possibility.

A concealed area might have been above a false ceiling or around a wall, the fire marshal said. The presence of combustible ceiling tile and wood materials provided the fuel supply for the spread of the fire around the Zebra Room, he said.

"Interviews with occupants of the Zebra Room and adjacent areas support this conclusion," said Southworth, who said some guests reported that they had complained it was getting hot in the room before the fire was discovered.

During a press conference, Southworth declined to speculate on when the fire broke out at the supper club, located five miles south of Cincinnati.

"The ignition sequence led to an intense heat buildup within the concealed space which ultimately resulted in the accumulation of smoke and hot gases in the Zebra Room itself," Southworth said. "It was at this point when the fire was discovered and attempts were made to extinguish it."

While attempts were being made to extinguish the fire, Southworth said, "simultaneous ignition" occurred of all combustible materials within the room.

The fire continued to build, according to Southworth, until it broke out of the Zebra Room through a set of double doors located at the north end of the room. The fire then spread rapidly through the structure, Southworth concluded.

Ken Brandenburg, Kentucky state police commissioner, said the team's conclusion was reached after a two-pronged investigation. It consisted of 30 individuals who have already interviewed some 300 people and a second team of 12 on-site investigators who went through the rubble of the club.

Brandenburg and Southworth refused to speculate on possible violations which they might have found in the construction or operation of the club.

They said a continued investigation and laboratory analysis of evidence would produce a timetable of events which will help to formalize conclusions concerning why so many lives were lost.

Southworth did say that the state had last conducted a walk-through inspection of the club on Jan. 27, 1977, and that no deficiencies were reported.

Meanwhile, Campbell County Coroner Dr. Fred Stine announced that all 161 bodies recovered from the fire have been identified. At the same time, the officials solved the mystery surrounding reports of two persons believed missing in the rubble.

He said one of the bodies was wrongly identified by relatives and had to be exhumed. The body of Judith Bohrer, 22 of Cincinnati, had been buried in a grave under another name, Stine said.

The other body was positively identified Thursday after further autopsies. The body turned out to be that of a woman reported missing in the fire but not found.

The coroner declined to reveal the name of the person who had been misidentified.

"Evidently one of the bodies (Miss Bohrer) was wrongly identified in the early hours after the fire," Stine said. "A purse which had evidently been lying near the body had been put in the wrong body bag."

The relatives used personal effects to help identify the body, Stine said.

The body of Evelyn Shough, 62 of Dayton was identified by further autopsy tests and through personal effects.

For the last few days, Stine had been meeting with FBI agents who along with local officials were attempting to untangle the dilemma of the two unidentified bodies and two missing persons.

Moluccan terrorists stormed

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Dutch commandos with automatic weapons, supported by jet fighters and armored cars, stormed a train and school at dawn today and freed all but two of 55 hostages held for 20 days by South Moluccan gunmen.

The government said two hostages and 6 of 13 terrorists were killed in the simultaneous rescue operations 12 miles apart in northern Holland's farm country. A government minister said the two hostages were not killed by bullets from the marine commandos' weapons.

Twelve persons were wounded in the attack on the train, including one terrorist, two commandos and nine passengers, officials said.

"The government felt it could wait no longer when it became clear that hostages were reaching psychological exhaustion and there was no way to persuade the Moluccans to give up .... We had to use force to prevent worse from happening," Premier Joop den Uyl said in a national broadcast. "In these actions, dead have fallen among the hostages and among the hijackers. The government knew this was possible. But ultimately we did not see any other way and we could not and must not have let the hijackers leave the country unpunished," den Uyl said.

To allow the terrorists to leave would have invited new kidnappings and "the exposure of free citizens to blackmail," the premier said.

The gunmen were demanding the release of 21 comrades jailed for previous terror acts and a jet to fly them all out of the country.

The raids began just before sunrise when five F104 jet fighters thundered over the train, where 51 hostages were held.

The planes appeared to be dropping smoke bombs. But a Justice Ministry spokesman said later the jets dropped nothing, and the explosions and smoke were detonated on the ground as a diversionary tactic.

Sources said marine demolition experts slapped plastic explosives against the train doors. The doors blew out and other marines, who had slithered close to the rail embankment from foxholes 100 yards away, leaped onto the train and battled the terrorists at close quarters.

Justice Minister Andreas van Agt told reporters the two dead hostages were not killed by marine bullets, but he declined to elaborate.

The marines poured into the school at Bovensmilde, on the southern outskirts of Assen, after one of four armored vehicles on the scene smashed through the front brick wall.

Newsman, kept behind police lines several hundred yards from the train and school, reported heavy automatic weapons fire at both locations.

Witnesses said the train, stalled in a field north of Assen, was pocked with bullet holes. The front of the train, where the terrorists had their headquarters, was blackened by explosions.

All of those killed were aboard the train, including hostages identified as J.M.O. Monsjou, 19, a woman from nearby Groningen, and M. van Baarsel, 40, a man from Elst in southeast Holland.

Carter may back building of bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who called the B1 bomber exotic and unnecessary during the presidential campaign, is giving some members of Congress the impression he will ask for a fleet of the costly, sophisticated planes.

Few expect him to recommend building all 244 planes the Air Force wants — at $102 million apiece. But Reps. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., and Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., who met with the President on Friday, said he is leaning toward at least limited production.

Other members of Congress invited by Carter to tell him why they oppose the B1 reported that the President gave no hint of his decision. "I don't think there's any way to tell which way he is leaning," said one of them, Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa.

Carter said he probably will decide by July 1.

"I will probably pretty much go into seclusion and study what the information is and make a decision," the President said. "My inclination is to announce my decision before the end of the month."

little doubt he opposed the B1.

"Exotic weapons which serve no real functions do not contribute to the defense of this country," he said. "The B1 bomber is an example of a proposed system which should not be funded and would be wasteful of taxpayers' dollars."

The President met with proponents of the plane on Tuesday. One of them, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., left the White House saying Carter "is becoming convinced we can't live without the B1."

After Friday's session in the White House cabinet room, Drinan declared: "I think the President is leaning definitely to authorize it. He spoke very cryptically of secret information that is now available to them."

The White House later issued a statement saying:

"The President's remark is simply in reference to the fact that since becoming President he has access to fuller and classified information on the military capability of the United States and other countries. His remarks were not intended to imply that such information disposes him to build the B1."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who attended the meeting, said he told Carter his credibility is at stake. "The first line of defense of any country is the credibility of its institutions and the credibility in particular of the President," the senator said.

President lashes solons' decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key congressional Democrats say President Carter should not accept a series of stinging setbacks of his energy program as final.

But some lawmakers indicate Carter may not have helped his cause by accusing Congress of caving in to the special interests of the oil and automobile industries.

That accusation is exaggerated, Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., said Friday after White House Press Secretary Jody Powell angrily relayed Carter's criticism. "A lot of people are struggling to find the best thing to do," Sharp said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, suggested that Carter take a more philosophical attitude about the defeat in the House Ways and Means Committee of his proposed 50-cent-per-gallon standby gasoline tax.

"It never even was considered seriously ..." Jackson said in an interview. "I think he was keenly aware the gasoline tax wasn't going anywhere ... I warned at the very outset that the five-cent (per year) tax on gas was dead."

But Jackson added there is a good chance Congress will approve a tax on gas-guzzling cars. The battle for Carter's natural-gas pricing proposals is still very close, the Washington Democrat added.

The Ways and Means Committee on Friday rejected the standby gasoline tax and Carter's proposed rebates for buyers of fuel-efficient cars. The panel also diluted sharply his proposal for taxing gas-guzzling cars.

Meanwhile, the House Commerce subcommittee on energy and power voted to remove federal price controls from new natural gas, a move the President opposes.

Powell said the American people will have to pay for those "special-interest victories" and said Carter fears the actions indicate "a trend in the Congress not to face up" to tough energy decisions.

But Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, chairman of a special House energy panel, noted that all of the decisions were tentative and said chances are excellent that some will be overturned.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House energy and power subcommittee, said he shares Carter's unhappiness with the deregulation decision. But he forecast significant changes in the President's plans for increasing coal use.

On the other hand, Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., the chief House proponent of deregulation, accused the White House of "faulty scholarship" in fighting removal of price controls.

Arraignments set Monday

Grand jurors indict jail escape suspects

A Fayette County grand jury handed down indictments of jail escape Friday on two prisoners being held on felony charges in the Fayette County jail.

Willie Ralph Gaston, 20, of Talladega, Ala., and William O'Keefe, 31, of Cleveland, were indicted for their unsuccessful escape attempt from the county jail on June 1.

John H. Roszmann, Fayette County assistant prosecuting attorney, reported that escape and attempted escape are the same in the eyes of the law. Both are covered under the same state statute. He explained that even though the escape was unsuccessful the indictments were for escape.

Both men will be arraigned Monday morning in Fayette County Common Pleas Court on the escape charges.

The two men allegedly attempted the escape by jamming the locking device on a cell block door at approximately 6:30 a.m. on June 1.

Jailer-dispatcher Thomas Rodgers had placed cleaning equipment inside the cell block and when he returned and unlocked a security door, he was reportedly rushed by Gaston and O'Keefe.

Rodgers was able to pull a safety door closed and summon Sheriff's Deputy Charles Wise, who was at the sheriff's headquarters at the time. Three Washington C.H. police officers were also called for assistance, and the two prisoners were returned to their cells.

Gaston, an escapee of the Alabama State prison system, was being held in the county jail on charges of armed robbery and possession of a firearm.

He was allegedly involved in a robbery attempt at a Fayette County service station in March. He was apprehended by the Ohio Highway Patrol after an hour-long, high-speed chase on Interstate 71.

Gaston is awaiting trial in Fayette County Common Pleas Court on the two charges filed following the incident in March.

O'Keefe was being held in the Fayette County jail on a Fayette County grand jury indictment for grand theft.

Ray escapes

mysterious "Raoul" whose last name he did not know. In any case, he claimed, he did not pull the King murder trigger.

He has stuck, basically, to this story during a hearing in Memphis to gain a new trial and, more recently, in interviews with representatives of the House Assassinations Committee from Washington.

Others who escaped with Ray were identified by prison officials as Donald Ray Caylor, 24, Knoxville, serving 51 years for armed robbery and jail escape; Douglas R. Shelton, 32, Kingsport, Tenn., serving 65 years for first-degree murder; Earl Hill Jr., 34, Washington County, Tenn., two life terms plus 27 years for charges including first-degree murder and rape; Larry E. Hacker, 32, Hamilton County, Ohio, serving 28 years for assault with a deadly weapon and safecracking, and David L. Powell, 27, Chicago, serving 100 years for first-degree murder in Memphis.

Ward, 35, Dallas, Tex., was serving 20 to 40 years for bank robbery.

The escape was set up by a mock fight in the yard of the prison by two other inmates, one of whom feigned a leg fracture, officers said.

As guards went to break up the disturbance, officials said, one of them spotted Jerry W. Ward scaling the wall on the ladder fashioned from conduit, a kind of pipe through which electrical wire is run. Shots were fired, Ward was felled and recaptured immediately.

But, according to officials, by the time Ward was spotted the others had disappeared into the dense, wooded hills behind the white, stone prison.

Ray had been transferred to Brushy early in his sentence — moving back to Nashville and the Tennessee State Prison when Brushy was closed for five years.

At his own request, he was moved back to Brushy when it reopened in 1976.

It was his third attempt to escape from Brushy, but the first time he got outside the walls. Once he wound up in a steam tunnel and another time he was found cowering in the prison yard.

Ray also tried three times to escape from the Missouri State Prison. He made it on the third try in 1967 and thus was a fugitive when King was shot, while in Memphis to support a strike by sanitation workers.

Two men hurt as auto overturns

Two men were admitted to Fayette County Memorial Hospital in "satisfactory" condition early Saturday morning following a one-car accident on U.S. 35-SE.

Timothy G. Reece, 25, of Galion, and Kevin D. Carter, 21, Mansfield, were both injured when their car overturned at 3:10 a.m. Saturday.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported that the car was heading southeast on U.S. 35 when it struck a guardrail near Cisco Road. The car then skidded across the highway, into a ditch, struck a utility pole and overturned striking a fence owned by William B. Dunn, 6684 U.S. 35-SE.

Both men were transported to the hospital by the Fayette County Life Squad.

Reece, the driver of the vehicle, was cited for reckless operation.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department also reported that a 13-year-old Fayette County boy was injured when his motorcycle pulled into the path of a car driven by Pearl R. Blazer, 29, Frankfort, on Friday afternoon.

Jesse A. McFadden of 2922 Good Hope-New Holland Road suffered a fractured leg. A passenger on the motorcycle, nine-year-old David Reisinger of 3554 Knight Road, was not injured. McFadden was treated and released from Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Sheriff's deputies reported that young McFadden was driving the motorcycle from a private drive on Good Hope-New Holland Road near the Compton Creek bridge when the mishap occurred.

Four minor traffic accidents were also investigated Friday by area law enforcement agencies. No other injuries were reported.

Washington C.H. police officers Larry Mongold reported that the suspicious car report was received at 7:12 a.m. Saturday. The car was

Besides the charge of possession of stolen license plates, Cole was charged with fictitious registration.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department is investigating a burglary at the Buckeye Hills Country Club, near Greenfield. Allen E. The National Weather Service reports that showers and thunderstorms might drop down over Ohio from Michigan, especially in western sections of the state.

Temperatures will be on the rise reaching well into the 70s and even the lower 80s.

There was a rather wide spread of temperature readings overnight, ranging from the higher 50s in western counties to the mid and upper 40s in the east.

Winds have been very light or calm but the temperature spread was mainly due to clouds, the weather service said.

There was considerable cloudiness in western sections along with shower activity, while skies in the eastern half of the state generally have been clear.

Supper club blueprints not found

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) — No true set of plans is yet available to aid investigators studying the fire which swept through Beverly Hills Supper Club, according to Kentucky State Fire Marshal Warren Southworth.

Southworth told a news conference Friday that such a set of blueprints had been submitted when the club was rebuilt in 1970, but he did not know what had happened to them.

He also could not say whether he had ever received plans for a later remodeling of the Zebra Room, where the investigative team believes the May 28 fire which killed 161 persons began.

"We're redrawing the plans to make a close estimate of how the building must have been configured," said Ken Brandenburg, state police commissioner.

Brandenburg said several avenues were being explored to gain copies of the plans, although interpretations of whether the various rooms underwent extensive remodeling may have precluded blueprints from being required.

Also still unavailable to state officials is the total capacity of the club.

Brandenburg said, however, that this information may be contained in the ever-growing number of documents being collected on the supper club, located five miles south of Cincinnati.

Investigators, who just finished their on-site inspection Friday, have not yet turned their attention to this mountain of paperwork, Brandenburg said.

Fire hurt other clubs

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — "Business has been off all over," since the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire, said the weekend manager of a Newport nightclub which is now emphasizing its safety in its advertising.

"Everybody's been shying away from it, but business has been off. Everybody is depressed about the fire," said Kenneth "Moose" Jones, a retired Newport police detective. Newport lies within two miles of the Beverly fire.

Nicky's Talk of the Town, a second-floor club featuring exotic dancers, operated by Nick Iacobucci, advertised the safety of the building, noting its sprinkler system. There was no sprinkler system at Beverly Hills, where 161 died May 28.

"Our building is fireproof and our just-inspected sprinkler system is described as being super-effective," the newspaper advertisement said.

Rhodes aide claims budget not balanced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes' chief fiscal officer says the state budget bill being prepared by majority Democrats in the legislature is about $60 million out of balance.

Budget Director William W. Wilkins said Friday the $11.7 billion proposal includes some $30 million worth of unrealistic assumptions about state revenue made by Democrats.

In addition, Wilkins said he had cut his own projections for the two-year period beginning July 1 by $29.5 million, mainly the result of lowered expectations for earnings on state investments.

Whether Democrats accept Wilkins' analysis and trim the budget or stand by the current figures may be decided Monday night. That's when the Senate Finance Committee turns its attention to the main budget bill, having completed work earlier in the week on a budget language measure, a companion bill.

The latter bill adds $54 million in funding for primary and secondary education, with about $40 million of the increases ticketed for the basic aid equal yield formula.

That would bring the total lower reconcile differences between the two bills.

Both versions of the legislation give automakers a new extension from automobile exhaust standards scheduled to take effect on 1978 models. The Senate put off the deadline to 1980. The House bill, containing the industry-backed timetable, puts off some standards until 1980 while postponing others indefinitely.

The Clean Air Act of 1970 called for a 90 per cent reduction in pollutants emitted by automobile engines. The deadline was first set for 1975, but industry already has been granted three one-year extensions.

According to congressional testimony, meeting the auto standards in the Senate bill would add between $300 and $350 to the sticker price of new cars while the House-passed bill would add about $170.

Under the Senate bill, the government also would have to establish emission rules for trucks and motorcycles and begin enforcing them in 1981.

Both the House and Senate bills give cities unable to meet air quality standards until 1987 to comply fully. Nearly every major U.S. city falls into this category.

The extension would make it easier for new industries to move into urbanized areas with dirty air.

Firemen advised workers that the trash burning was illegal and the fire was extinguished.

Columbus board OKs plan

March 8 found that Columbus schools had been purposely segregated.

"I urge the people of Columbus to join in my expectation that the federal court system will deal with these plans fairly, to provide opportunity for every citizen to have his or her day in court, and to be patient as the court proceeds to discharge its unique responsibility with respect to these plans," said interim Supt. Joseph L. Davis after the plan was adopted.

The plan calls for busing 18,000 to 19,000 primary students beginning this fall, 11,000 junior high students the next year, and 9,000 senior high pupils in the final phase. The board expects that it will have to buy 423 new buses at a total cost of $11.3 million to implement the plan.

The transportation and redistricting sections call for building around the 123 elementary districts. Students within 118 of those districts will eventually face involuntary busing some time during their public school careers.

Opinion And Comment

Too many advisory groups

Federal advisory committees, like the agencies that spawn them, tend to be self-perpetuating. Once established they generally continue, without much reference to whether or not they continue to be of significant value.

The resistance to dropping this or that advisory group is seen in the response to President Carter's order for a review of which ones might be done away with. So far, the Office of Management and Budget reports, the agencies have recommended eliminating 304 committees - which would leave 876 in existence. More pruning than that is in order. Some advisory groups are genuinely useful, but many are an expensive luxury which the nation could do without.

The energy department bills

House approval of a bill to establish a Department of Energy sets the stage for a spirited conference committee effort to reach a compromise. A fight can be expected on at least three significant differences between the Senate and House versions of this important legislation.

One of these differences is that the House, unlike the Senate, placed a time limit on the life of the new agency. An amendment provides that it shall go out of existence in five years unless continued by congressional action.

The House bill also calls for a wholly independent commission within the new department to regulate prices of natural gas and wholesale rates on electricity transmitted across state lines. The Senate version, in contrast, would allow the secretary of energy some part in the commission's deliberations and would give the president veto power over its pricing decisions.

The Senate bill also would strengthen the administration's hand in another respect. Under this version, rules issued by the Energy Department would be final; the House would give Congress the right to veto such rules.

There is reason to doubt the validity of House concern lest the new department wield inordinate power. The authority of the secretary of energy would be restricted enough to prevent that - especially if, as now appears all but certain, price-setting is left to a commission.

In our judgment it would be folly to insulate this commission from input by the energy secretary, as the House bill intends; in this respect the Senate version is much preferable. Nor does it strike us as wise to pose the threat of congressional veto of department regulations, though these should be subject to ultimate review just as other departments' rules are.

As to placing a limit on the department's life barring specific action to continue it a few years hence, we consider this structure unsound. This has superficial appeal, seeming merely to afford a chance to let the agency die should it develop into a monster. This is outweighed by other considerations.

The Department of Energy must move with firmness and vigor if it is to effectively direct the nation's response to the energy crisis. Some of the steps it will have to take are bound to be unpopular some will tread on the toes of vested interests. Were the time limit on the department's life left in the enabling act, Congress would be importuned - and strongly pressured - to kill it by default. No other department operates under such a Damoclean sword. Nor should this one.

New spare tire set

DETROIT (AP) — Some 1978-model small cars will carry new space-saving spare tires that will be smaller, lighter and up to 50 per cent less bulky than conventional tires.

The compact spare tire initially will be offered on all of General Motors' intermediate cars, say industry sources. Later in the model year, Chrysler's compacts and intermediates will get the new tire.

American Motors is considering using it as a mid-model year offering, but has not come to a final decision. Ford is the only major U.S. maker with no plans to use the tire.

The spare comes fully inflated and is ready to use when one of the regular tires goes flat.

Several car lines have used similar mini-spares for several years, but those are foldable tires which must be inflated with a special propellant contained in a bottle.

The new compact spare is a high-pressure tire, inflated to 60 pounds per square inch, about double the pressure of a conventional tire.

As far as automakers are concerned, its main advantage is it takes up to 1.5 fewer cubic feet of trunk space. And, space is a premium commodity for auto designers who are trying to make cars smaller and lighter on the outside to improve fuel economy while preserving as much passenger and trunk space as possible.

The tire, which will be labeled "for temporary use only," received safety approval from the government a few months ago. Tire makers say a car with the spare should be driven no more than 50 miles an hour or for more than 2,000 to 3,000 miles without replacing it with a regular-sized tire.

The GM intermediates using the tire include the restyled Chevrolet Chevelle-Malibu and Monte Carlo, Pontiac LeMans and Grand Prix, Oldsmobile Cutlass and Buick Century-Regal. Those cars will be up to 1½ feet shorter and 800 pounds lighter than their 1977 counterparts.

On the average, the tire — including the metal wheel — is some four inches shorter in diameter and three inches less thick across the tread than a conventional tire.

An advantage for someone who has to change it is that it weighs only about 27 pounds, some 13 pounds less than a regular spare. It will cost slightly less than a conventional tire, industry spokesmen say.

The rubber companies say because it is smaller, the spare will cause a car to lean about two inches. But they say the list is not very noticeable from inside the car. They also say the ride is smooth because the suspension system compensates for the smaller size.

The spare is a four-ply nylon bias tire, but can be used with radial tires because of the high pressure, according to rubber engineers.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Lost possessions, but hasn't lost much

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently died and she left me her Bible. In it was a letter she had clipped from your column. It was yellow with age. I am enclosing it in hope that you will run it again because there is a very important lesson to be learned in your reply.

Maybe others will learn from it.

RAY
DEAR RAY: With pleasure, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago we had a flash flood, and I lost nearly all the treasures I had saved for 45 years. Albums filled with pictures and snapshots, letters, clippings—none of which can be replaced. I had them stored in plastic containers, and when I opened them, all I found was mud and water.

It seems that a part of my life is gone, and I am heartsick over it. I am 60 and have had a very happy life. Our children are married and gone, and there are just the two of us.

I've tried to keep busy and not dwell on my loss, but it is on my mind constantly. I wish I could forget this terrible nightmare.

Somehow I feel that you can help me. Abby, have you ever lost any of your treasures? And if you have, how did you get over it?

DEPRESSED IN HOUSTON
DEAR DEPRESSED: Yes, Dear. I lost my beautiful mother in 1945. (She was only 57.) And a few years later, I lost a wonderful father. (He was only 62.) And not a day passes that I don't thank God for letting me have my parents for as long as I did. I know many of those who have survived a far greater tragedy—losing their children.

Now, what were you saying about clippings and pictures and other "treasures"?

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a minister. He does everything on a schedule basis. And I mean EVERYTHING.

Sunday night is our night for lovemaking. I am not complaining because I enjoy it as much as he does, but, Abby, he is big and strong and very physical. He's not rough or abusive, but he's very affectionate and puts a lot of enthusiasm in everything he does.

To get to the point, on Monday morning I'm exhausted, and that's the day I do my wash.

Any suggestions?

TIRED ON MONDAY
DEAR TIRED: Yes. Wash on Tuesday.

Wages, salaries increase during first 3 months

Wages and salaries increased by an average of 1.5 per cent during the first three months of this year compared to a 1.9 per cent rate of gain in the last quarter of 1976. A major factor behind the earnings slow-down were the few collective bargaining agreements negotiated during the most recent period. The pay for all workers covered by union agreements rose 1.4 per cent (2 per cent in the previous quarter) and pay for all manufacturing workers slowed to 1.9 per cent from 2.2 per cent. For the 12 months ending March 31 blue-collar pay increased 7.4 per cent, service workers pay rose 7.3 per cent and white-collar pay rose 6.2 per cent. Agricultural prices rose by 2 per cent during the 30 day period ending on May 15. This follows a 1.5 per cent increase in the previous 30 day period and is the sixth consecutive monthly increase. Steady upward pressure on farm product prices points toward further increases in retail food prices, that may increase as much as 6 per cent during all of 1977. Main factors behind most recent increase were a $4.70 per cwt. jump in hog prices to an average of $40.70, a $1.20 per cwt. hike in all cattle prices to $36.10, and a 35 cent per bushel increase in soybean prices. Partially offsetting were lower prices for corn and sorghum. The index of prices paid by farmers for production inputs remained unchanged in the latest 30 day period.

Ohio's agricultural exports in fiscal 1976 of $800 mil. ranked 10th among the states. Illinois topped the list with sales valued at $2.4 billion. Iowa was second with $1.8 billion followed by Texas, California, Kansas, Nebraska, Indiana, Minnesota and North Carolina. Sixty per cent of the $22.8 billion agricultural exports originated in the top ten states. Wheat and feed grain acreage cer-tification will be revived this year. Certification was used through 1973 then discontinued on the two crops. The farm legislation for 1978 wheat, feed grains and cotton programs provides the Secretary could base set aside requirements on the previous year's acreage. Also he might have the option of picking the year.

Corn use in domestic feeding below year ago is baffling. Factors normally associated with strong feed use include 1) increased output of livestock and poultry products, 2) sharply higher protein prices, 3) extremely cold temperatures increasing livestock energy requirements and, 5) short hay supplies. The prior factors would seem to outweigh the use reducing factors that follow: 1) lighter hog slaughter weights, 2) apparent shorter feeding periods for cattle on feed, 3) high quality 1976 corn crop, and 4) more silage. Exports of corn have been at a record pace. Carryover on October 1, 1977 may be pushed upward 400-500 mil. bu. above the 398 mil. bu. carryover of 1976.

Hogs and pigs quarterly report is frequently criticized for the downward effect on prices. In the 1973-76 period with 16 reports issued, hog prices the week of the report were higher 9 times and lower 7 times than the week prior to the report. The total dollar change was $15.19 for the increase and $9.61 for the decline — a net of $5.58. But factors other than the report have much more influence on hog prices. The hog cycle and seasonality of hog prices that are influenced by supplies and prices of feed, supplies of beef and poultry, consumer incomes, etc. have much more influence on hog prices than the reports. The reports are for planning purposes — to step us or cut back breeding and feeding operations.

Pork, lamb queen contests set

By JOHN P. GRUBER
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Plans have been made for the annual contests to select the 1977 Fayette County Pork and Lamb queens. The Pork Queen contest will be held Wednesday evening, June 22 at the Mahan Building, Fayette County Fairgrounds. The Lamb Queen will be selected at a Shepherd's Club Family Night Cookout, Sunday evening, June 26 at the John Melvin farm on West Road.

Rules and entry forms for both contests are available at the County Extension Office.

Pork Queen contestants must be single, age 16-19 inclusive as of January 1, 1977 and a resident of Fayette County. Contestant must reside on a farm on which hogs are produced and be the daughter of parents now actively engaged in the production of pork. Each contestant must present a short talk, not to exceed five minutes, on any subject pertaining to the pork industry. An entry form for the Pork Queen contest must be submitted to the Extension office by Friday, June 17, 1977.

LAMB QUEEN contestants must be single age 15 to 21 inclusive. Contestants must live on a farm where sheep are produced, or her parents must derive part of their income from the production of lamb, or she must have a lamb project in 4-H or FFA. Each contestant must submit an essay on any subject pertaining to lamb which may include marketing, production, or consumption. Entry deadline for the Lamb Queen contest is Monday, June 20.

SIGN UP for voting in the July 5-15 Beef Referendum continues through June 17. Beef and dairymen who owned cattle during calendar year 1976 are eligible to register and vote. Producers cannot vote during the July voting period if they do not register prior to the June 17 deadline. Registration for the referendum and the voting take place at the County ASCS Office, 1503 Columbus Ave. A quick check Thursday morning pointed out that only 22 producers had registered during the first three days. That's less than 10 per cent of eligible producers.

The Beef Referendum was set up under the National Beef Research and Information Act. The purpose of the program is to establish a National Beef Board, composed of producers, with the power to collect an assessment on the sales of cattle and use the funds collected for beef research and market promotion programs. The initial assessment has been set at three-tenths of one per cent. The maximum assessment set by law was one-half of one per cent.

THE RATTLESNAKE Creek Watershed Steering Committee will meet Thursday, June 16, 11 a.m. at Anderson's Restaurant according to John Peterson, chairman. John indicates the meeting is open to the public and anyone with an interest in the Rattlesnake project is welcome to attend.

EXHIBITION planning to participate in the 1977 Ohio State Fair should remember that the dates have changed and so has the entry deadline. This year's State Fair is August 16-28. Entry deadline has moved up to July 1. If you need a premium book or entry blanks write to Ohio State Fair, Ohio Exposition Center, Columbus, Ohio 43211.

SPEAKING of fairs, the Fayette County Fair is not too far away. The 1977 event gets underway Sunday, July 24 and runs through Saturday, July 30. Reports at this past week's meeting of the Fair Board indicate the plans are

Higher meat prices expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says consumers will pay more for beef and pork this summer than they did a year ago and the price surge probably will continue moderately next fall.

Higher meat prices have been predicted for months by USDA and other livestock experts. However, they are not predicting that meat prices will skyrocket immediately or that they will soar to record levels.

Much will depend on the weather, and how farmers and ranchers adjust their inventories of cattle, hogs and poultry. As always, grain prices and the size of the harvests will be important factors.

But cattle producers, particularly, have trimmed herds sharply to offset financial losses, and this will mean less beef, the main item in the American meat diet.

Following stable prices in the first half of the year, consumers will face higher retail meat prices during the second half, the Department's Outlook and Situation Board said Monday.

"Smaller beef supplies, improved consumer demand, and higher marketing costs will more than offset continued large pork and broiler supplies," the report said.

The supermarket price of choice-grade beef from grain-fed cattle, which is used as a standard by USDA in comparing prices, is expected to average 3 to 4 per cent higher during the summer quarter than this spring, officials said.

"Hamburger prices could advance more than those for choice beef, if slaughter of cows and forage-fed steers and heifers declines this summer as expected," a report said. "Further moderate retail price increases for choice beef and hamburger are expected this fall."

The main sources of hamburger are cows and other cattle which are not "finished" for the slaughter-market in feedlots. If farmers and ranchers send fewer of those animals to market there will be less hamburger and prices will go up.

But producers have sharply boosted the supply of pork and broiler chickens the past year, meaning more competition for beef. Total meat output for 1977 is expected to be about the same as last year.

Also, 1977 beef output still will be relatively large in comparison with most previous years.

"With relatively large beef production and increased pork and broiler supplies, any price advance in the fed cattle market much above late May levels is unlikely," the report said.

"For 1977, the price of choice steers at Omaha may average in the low $40 range, up from $39 per 100 pounds in 1976."

Even so, steer prices on the big Omaha market are expected to be higher at the end of 1977 than they were at the start. The report said they might average $42 to $45 per 100 pounds in the second half of this year, compared with less than $38 in the first quarter and an estimated $41 to $43 this spring. Retail pork prices might be 8 to 10 per cent higher this summer than a year ago, with hog supplies declining slightly.

Weevils hurt crops

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Alfalfa weevils are making their presence known in Ohio this spring. Damage rates as high as 90 per cent are reported in some areas, according to R. D. Blair, extension entomologist at Ohio State University.

Alfalfa weevil parasite releases have been made in many Ohio fields, Blair said, with at least one species well established in the state. Parasites help control weevils year after year, he said, but he recommends that parasite-protected fields be checked weekly for weevil damage.

Other fields, particularly those which have been early cut, should be inspected twice weekly to determine whether weevils are destroying the buds which make up the second growth plant material.

Blair said that when half to three-quarters of the terminals show some weevil damage and two or more weevil larvae can be found per stem, control or harvest should occur within a few days.

Computer that talks exhibited

CLEVELAND (AP) — A computer that talks is one of the new toys being shown off at the second annual Midwest Regional Computerfest for computer hobbyists this weekend.

"Computer games were big at last year's show," said Gary Coleman, president of the Cleveland Digital Club. "This year it's peripherals."

A peripheral is a separate piece of equipment which extends the range of things the computer can do.

Case Western Reserve University has an exhibit describing a minicomputer system that scans a printed page and translates it into spoken language.

Another piece of talking equipment is a speech synthesizer shown by the Digital Group of Denver. Plug the synthesizer into your computer, and you can make it talk by striking keys on the input keyboard.

The unit is expected to be priced at around $1,500 when it comes on the market later this year.

Exhibitors at the show say interest in personal computers has mushroomed in the last three years as the result of technical innovations that have lowered the price of components.

Dr. Robert T. Suding, director of research for Digital, said business hasn't just grown, "it has exploded."

Volume has been increasing at the rate of 25 per cent a month, he said. Digital had 30 employees making components for the hobby and commercial markets at mid-April, he said. By June 1 there were 55 employees.

About one-fourth of Digital's business is with hobbyists who also are amateur radio operators. They can link computer and radio to send and receive teletype and telegraph code data and even photos, he said.

TV Viewing

By JERRY BUCK

AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — From author Martin Caidin, the man who gave us "The Six Million Dollar Man," which spawned the "Bionic Woman," comes yet another venture into human mechanics.

NBC's "Exo-Man" is not a new extension of bionics. It is, instead, about a crippled physics professor who builds an electronic suit of armor that turns him, in effect, into an invincible human robot.

Don't go away. It's not as hokey as it may sound. In fact, the movie, to be seen at 9 p.m. EDT Monday on NBC, is well done, and for an action-adventure film spends a surprising amount of time delineating the characters.

The bit with the exo-suit doesn't come until the end, when the professor takes on the mobsters who crippled him to silence him as a witness. By that time the foundation has been solidly established. The name, incidentally, comes from exo-skeleton: Exo-Man, like a lobster, wears his "skeleton" on the outside.

David Ackroyd, a relatively unknown New York actor, plays the lead role, Prof. Nicholas Conrad. Anne Schedeen is his artist girlfriend.

"Exo-Man," as you've likely guessed by now, is a pilot, and producer Lionel E. Siegel said it was the last made for the season. It just barely made it, with the finished film getting to New York only a few days before the decision on the fall season. It didn't make it, but Siegel said he has hopes for a mid-season pickup.

The executive producer, Richard Irving, directed the film. Earlier, he produced and directed "Cyborg" from Caidin's book, which was turned into "The Six Million Dollar Man" and started a whole new trend in television action-adventure.

After Caidin delivered the script and another writer did some work on it, Siegel said he wrote three more drafts. Why so much rewriting?

"I personally like to write about people who are vulnerable, to show and dramatize those scenes," said Siegel, also a supervising producer for "The Six Million Dollar Man." "What I did was work with the characters until I liked them and understood them, and put them into situations that exposed their anxieties, their fears and their strengths."

Siegel said he doubted that the new trend of humans gaining super powers with the aid of modern science has peaked yet.

Bench divorced

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench has obtained a final decree of divorce from his wife, Vickie.

Included in the agreement is a clause that neither party would discuss the circumstances of their marriage in any book, magazine or newspaper.

The decree was granted here Thursday after property settlement questions had been resolved.

Under the agreement, Bench is to pay a lump settlement of $23,200 and also periodic alimony payments. The terms of the alimony payments were not disclosed.

The Benches separated in February 1976 and Vickie Bench moved back to New York, where she has resumed her modeling career.

The couple was married in February 1975 in one of the most lavish ceremonies in Cincinnati social history, with an estimated 800 people attending.

Bench, 28, and his wife, 26, had no children. It was the first marriage for both parties.

Miss Hixon and Mr. McHolan exchange marriage vows

Miss Cherri Lynn Hixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denver Hixon, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, and Charles Steve McHolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton W. McHolan of 1612 Barbara Lane, exchanged marriage vows at 5:30 p.m. June 4. The Rev. Stan Toler performed the double-ring ceremony in the Church of Christ in Christian Union.

A large pedestal arrangement of gladioli and other spring flowers was in the center of the altar, with lighted tapes in candelabra on either side.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long white wedding gown with long, full sheer sleeves adorned with lace motifs. The wedding ring neckline was accented with a lace bib. An attached train accented the back of the gown. Her elbow length tulle veil was caught to a lace cap, and she carried a colonial bouquet of daisies with ribbon streamers.

Miss Johnna C. Hixon, cousin of the bride, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a long formal pale pink dress, and carried a bouquet of pink and white daisies, accented with purple flowers.

Mr. McHolan served as best man for his son. Seating the wedding guests were Roger Mason, a cousin of the bride, and Lonnie Hixon, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Hixon chose for her daughter's wedding a pink knit street-length dress with matching jacket. She wore a corsage of pink and lavender daisies. Mrs. McHolan wore a long yellow dress and a corsage of daisies.

Hostesses for the reception held in the church Fellowship Hall, were Miss Tammy Renick and Mrs. Vicki Desaw, both cousins of the bride. Miss Sandra Mason, another cousin, presided at the guest book. The bride's table held a three-tiered wedding cake encircled with pink and purple flowers and fern.

The couple went on a wedding trip to Illinois, and Mammoth Cave, Ky.

The new Mrs. McHolan, a senior at Miami Trace High School, is employed at the J&J Restaurant. Her husband, a 1975 graduate of MTHS is employed by Chappell Door Company Inc., Washington C.H.

FROZEN LEMON CREAM — Serve it in lemon shells or boats if you like to do fancy work in the kitchen; if not, just scoop it into sherbet glasses.

Frozen Lemon Cream shapes up

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
During the '40s a dessert called Frozen Lemon Cream became popular. It was made with whipped light cream, lemon rind, lemon juice, sugar and eggs. But in later years the recipe got left behind. Perhaps because whipping the light cream took some doing. Perhaps because cholesterol-watchers cropped up and they weren't eager to include the eggs.

Now an innovative cook has updated the old-fashioned formula. She found that using plain half-and-half without beating it and omitting the eggs made a quick, easy and delicious frozen offering. It has a sherbetlike texture and our tasters thought it refreshing.

We like the Frozen Lemon Cream served in scoops in sherbet glasses or in squares on dessert plates. But if you enjoy doing fancy work in the kitchen, you can make lemon shells or boats and offer the Frozen Cream in them. For each shell cut off one-third of a large lemon at one end. (You can use the ends to garnish and flavor fish.) Carefully ream out the juice and with a sturdy teaspoon scrape the shell "clean." For boats cut large lemons in half lengthwise; make a shallow "V" cut in each half so you can lift out the white center core. Carefully ream out the juice and with a sturdy teaspoon scrape the boats "clean." The shells and boats may be made ahead, wrapped appropriately and frozen until you are ready to thaw and use them.

FROZEN LEMON CREAM

1 pint half-and-half
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon freshly grated lemon rind
1-3rd cup freshly squeezed lemon juice

In a medium bowl stir together until the sugar dissolves. Stir in the lemon rind and the lemon juice. Pour into a shallow rectangular container—at least 1-quart size. Cover tightly. Freeze without stirring—it will take at least 4 hours before the mixture is firm. Before serving, let stand briefly in the refrigerator to soften enough to cut into squares or serve in scoops. Makes 1½ pints.

Wise homeowners purchasing smoke detectors

EDITOR'S NOTE: The smell of smoke may be the first signal that your house is on fire. But you may not notice the smell until it's too late. A growing number of Americans are giving themselves extra protection by installing smoke detectors. Here, in the third of a three-part series, is look at some of the things you should know.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Thousands of lives and billions of dollars in property are going up in flames each year, and many Americans are turning to home smoke detectors to lessen their chances of being one of the losers.

The National Fire Prevention and Control Administration estimates that sales of smoke detectors may reach the $200 million mark by 1980, up from $87 million last year.

The agency would like to see the devices in 25 per cent of American homes by 1980 and in 75 per cent by 1990.

Smoke detectors have gotten a boost from state and local authorities who are requiring them in some or all new buildings. Such regulations are in effect in more than 30 states, according to the fire prevention unit.

The proliferation of models — Underwriters Laboratories says 98 brands of smoke alarms meet its standards this year, up from only four in 1970 — has caused problems for consumers trying to buy wisely.

"Too often ... the consumer has inadequate knowledge of the workings of detectors and of placement and servicing once he has purchased one or more detectors," said a spokesman for the National Bureau of Standards in the Department of Commerce.

Most experts agree that the detectors have the potential to save lives. Commerce Department studies show that smoke detectors could cut deaths from home fires, now about 12,000 annually, by more than 40 per cent.

Howard Tipton, administrator of the fire prevention unit, calls the home smoke detector "the most significant technological weapon our nation has to reduce fire deaths and destruction."

According to government experts, smoke detectors generally cost between $30 and $50, although some models may be slightly more expensive, depending on such extra features as test buttons.

All of the smoke alarm systems work by sensing the rising smoke from a fire and sounding a warning. Don't worry about sleeping through the alarm. "They make an atrocious noise," explained one owner.

There are two types of detectors on the market: photoelectric and ionization chamber. Both can detect smoke far from the origin of the fire.

The photoelectric detector uses a photoelectric bulb that sends forth a beam of light. When smoke enters the detector, light from the beam is reflected from the smoke particles into a photocell and the alarm is triggered.

The ionization chamber model contains a small radiation source that produces electrically charged air molecules called ions. The presence of the ions allows a small electric current to flow in the chamber. When smoke particles enter the chamber, they attach themselves to the ions and reduce the flow of electric current. The change in the current sets off the alarm.

Government and private testing agencies have rejected claims the small amount of the radiation produced by the ionization models is dangerous; before any detector is placed on the market, the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission performs a radiation safety analysis to make sure that the model meets safety requirements.

Manufacturers of ionization models claim that their alarms can respond more quickly to invisible fume particles. The National Bureau of Standards says, however, that both types of detectors "are equally effective in the home" if properly installed. They say ionization detectors generally will react more quickly to flaming fires, but photoelectric models respond faster to smoldering fires.

You may want to install both kinds of detectors, but the authorities stress that there is no need to.

The detectors are powered by batteries or by household current. The battery-operated models — usually of the ionization variety — are easier to install, but you will have to replace the batteries approximately once a year at a cost of $2 to $10.

Battery-operated detectors approved by a recognized testing agency such as Underwriters Laboratories — UL — are required to sound a trouble signal — a sort of chirping sound — when the batteries need to be replaced. The signal usually lasts for seven days. If you will be away from home for a long period of time, check your alarm when you return.

Detectors which operate on household current may be plugged into an existing outlet or permanently wired into the home's electrical system. If you choose the first option, make sure the outlet does not operate with an on-off wall switch, since you could turn the detector off accidentally. If you want a permanently wired system, you will need an electrician for installation. Expect to pay between $25 and $50.

Like the battery-operated devices, the detectors that run on current include a warning — usually a light — to indicate that the power is functioning.

If you are unsure about which model to buy or where to install it, check your local fire department. As a general rule, the best place for any alarm is on the ceiling or high on an inside wall just below the ceiling. (That's because smoke rises.) If your home has more than one story, you will need a detector on every level. The detector for the first floor should be placed on the ceiling at the base of the stairwell.

In the basement, the alarm should be located on the ceiling at the bottom of the stairway.

Detectors should be installed near enough to bedrooms so that the alarm can be heard if the door is closed. The detector should not be installed within three feet of an air supply register that might blow the smoke away.

You also should keep the detector away from air conditioners and fans. It generally is not a good idea to place the alarm in the kitchen or too close to a fireplace because of the possibility of false alarms.

False alarms also can be set off by dirt. Dust or vacuum the grillwork regularly and check the detector once every 30 days, using the test button if there is one, or blowing smoke into the unit.

All alarms should be used in connection with a family escape plan. According to the Bureau of Standards, a smoke detector in working condition will usually give you at least three minutes to evacuate the house. Hold fire drills so all family members know how to get out quickly. Don't try to fight the fire yourself. Choose a meeting place outside the house so you will know whether everyone has escaped. Once all family members are safe, go to a neighbor's and call the fire department.

Taiwan's trading stance eyed

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — "Taiwan isn't going to disappear. We are going to stay right here, to stay alive and do all we can."

The words are those of Ambassador James C.H. Chen of the Republic of China, more often called Taiwan these days by those who wish to distinguish it from the People's Republic of China on the mainland.

Chen spoke in response to a question about the security of U.S. investments in Taiwan should the United States recognize the Peking government. The question was one that too often is politely left unasked.

Taiwan maintains it is the real China, and that someday it will return to the mainland, now controlled by the Communists. The United States isn't as certain; it has studied the possibility of recognizing the Communists.

If it does so, will that mean dropping diplomatic recognition of the Taiwan government? Abrogating the defense treaty? Removing military support?

Bond issue on prisons progresses

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A $275 million bond issue to ease crowded prison conditions through construction of new facilities and renovation of existing ones has been approved by the House Judiciary Committee.

But speedy action on the House floor is not anticipated by the sponsor, Judiciary Chairman Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, despite an 18-1 favorable recommendation by the committee and elimination of a proposed cigarette tax increase.

Lehman said his resolution, which would increase the alcohol gallonage tax, would probably have to await action on a proposal to lift the state's $750,000 debt limit.

That resolution, allowing the legislature to issue general obligation bonds for various projects without a vote of the people, appears to be destined for the November ballot.

All these the Peking government has said it wants.

The uncertainties leave American businessmen in a predicament: Should they continue to invest in the thriving economy of Taiwan and perhaps find themselves some day without the security of diplomatic recognition?

Many U.S. businessmen remain confident of their investments and, in fact, are adding to them. So too are companies from all over the industrialized world, who poured more than $140 million into the island republic last year.

Much of that total, up 20 per cent from 1975, came from nations that already had "dropped diplomatic recognition of Taiwan. But investment by firms based in the United States, which continues to recognize Taiwan, dropped to only half the 1975 total of $41 million.

Chen's comments, made in Dallas recently at the 4th Annual International Trade Conference of the Southwest, provide some insight for American businessmen.

"We are not going to discourage foreign investment, and I am sure the guarantees and assurances will remain intact," he said, "but just the same, we hope that your government will handle the question very, very carefully."

How the issue is handled, he said, clearly affects the image of the United States as well as Taiwan's security.

"It affects all neighboring countries and also affects the credibility of the U.S.A. as a dependable ally and friend," he said. "If I were in Peking I would question the sincerity of U.S.A.," he commented.

Recognition of mainland China by the United States, Chen summarized, "will certainly add to our difficulties," but he made clear his nation would survive.

"I suppose for a while the people would be uncertain to see how the people on Taiwan would handle the situation — whether they are going to collapse like what happened in Vietnam, or are they going to overcome."

His message was clear: Taiwan, strong militarily and industrially, won't sink into the sea. The Chinese might need time to settle their problems, but meanwhile Taiwan seeks investments and trade, and is willing to work for both.

'Big Dog' receives warm re-welcome

Norman, Driessen all Reds need to spoil Perez homecoming, 13-1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tony Perez was choked up. Dan Driessen was psyched up.

"I was super glad for him," said Driessen, who had reason to be happy himself.

Perez, one of Cincinnati's all-time baseball heroes, was near tears after an emotional return to Riverfront Stadium Friday night. Reds' fans saluted the departed slugger with a roaring 65-second standing ovation.

Perez rubbed his eyes, tipped his cap to the crowd several times and later called the homecoming greeting "something special." Longtime observers said the rousing welcome was the largest given an opposing player since a packed Crosley Field crowd thundered waves of applause on Boston's Ted Williams, then a civilian, during the 1954 All-Star game.

Powered by Driessen and George Foster, Cincinnati snapped the Expos' five-game winning streak with 13-1 rout keyed by a 16-hit attack and Fred Norman's strong pitching. The victory put the Reds' record over .500 at 27-26 for the first time since the opening week of the season.

They now trail the Los Angeles Dodgers by eight games, having trimmed the deficit from 13 in two weeks.

FRED NORMAN

The 25-year-old infielder admitted he had one question for Perez. "I asked him if he learned to speak French yet," said Driessen.

DAN DRIESSEN

Norman notched his fifth straight victory and maintained his four year charm over the Expos. He has not lost to Montreal since July 11, 1973.

Bailey moves to Fostoria

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio — James Bailey was hired as head basketball coach at Fostoria High School by the Fostoria Board of Education this week.

Bailey, who had been head coach at Circleville during the 1975-76 and 1976-77 seasons, will assume his new duties this fall at Fostoria as well as teach social studies.

Fostoria is located on Route 23 north of Columbus and takes students from Wood, Seneca and Hancock counties.

It is a large Class AA school and competes in the Great Lakes League which consists of all Class AAA schools with the exception of Fostoria.

It will be a building year for Bailey as the Redman only had two wins last season.

"It will be a tremendous challenge to build a successful basketball program, especially in the triple-A league, but it should be fun and I am looking forward to it," said Bailey when contacted.

In two years at Circleville, Bailey's teams compiled a 35-10 record. They were regional tournament runners-up his rookie season and sectional champions last year.

Bailey came under fire for his decision to not start his regular five against Wilmington in the final league game of the year, resulting in the Hurricane clinching at least part of the

JAMES BAILEY

SCOL crown.

But, Wilmington went on to defeat Washington C.H. for a perfect 12-0 record. After the season, Bailey handed in his resignation and had planned to remain in the Circleville area, retaining his teaching duties at the high school.

"My family and I enjoyed our stay in Circleville very much," Bailey commented, "and it is a fine community and we were glad to be a part of it. In basketball, I will most remember how hard our kids played and how much they improved each season."

A replacement for Bailey in the Circleville post has not been named.

Seattle Slew looking to join Citation and Secretariat

NEW YORK (AP) — Seattle Slew's name will be inscribed on one of two lists today.

One of the lists includes names like Gallant Fox, War Admiral, Whirlaway, Count Fleet, Citation and Secretariat. The other includes the likes of Tim Tam, Carry Back, Northern Dancer, Forward Pass, Majestic Prince and Canonero II.

Seattle Slew, unbeaten yet many say not unbeatable, will become either the 10th winner of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown, or the ninth colt to win the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, then fail in the 1½-mile Belmont Stakes.

Either way the husky bay colt, owned by Mickey and Karen Taylor of White Swan, Wash., will enjoy good company.

Mickey, a log cutter who lives on the Yakima Indian reservation in Eastern Washington, where a good horse once was valued as highly as a good axe, showed little signs of the pressure leading up to the Triple Crown on Friday, the day before the race.

He ambled about the rain-soaked yard outside Barn No. 54, where The Slew was stabled, chatting with passersby, joking with reporters and being generally sociable.

Turner had just taken Seattle Slew out for a final blowout before the race, which will go to post about 5:38 p.m., EDT. Slew's fractions, under exercise rider Mike Kennedy, were 12 for the eighth, 234-5 for the quarter and 354-5 for three eighths. He was up in 494-5, over a sloppy main track.

After the workout, Turner went over the past performances of the other entries with reporters. Golden Chance Farm's Run Dusty Run, Harry T. Mangurian Jr.'s Iron Constitution and Darby Dan Farm's Sanhedrin were the main competition.

"Sanhedrin hasn't won many, but he doesn't run badly," Turner said of the winner of only two of 14 starts who has had three seconds and four thirds. "He's a contender."

Meadow Stable's Spirit Level was "the up and coming" horse in the field, Turner said of the Steve DiMauro-trained colt, winner of his last three starts. And "respect" was the word Turner used for the Johnny Campo-trained entry of Hey Hey J.P. and Make Amends and John L. Greer's Mr. Red Wing.

Campo, however, said Friday, "I'll scratch J.P. tomorrow before the race." If Hey Hey J.P. is scratched, he'll probably go in today's Keystone Handicap.

The only entries Turner discounted were Sir Sir who finished far back in both the Derby and Preakness, and Leading Scorer.

If Seattle Slew triumphs in the 109th running of the Belmont he not only will become the first unbeaten Triple Crown winner, he also will have overcome the largest field ever in doing so.

In 1948, Citation faced seven rivals, and twice—War Admiral in 1937 and Assault in 1946—the winner faced six other contenders. Sir Barton, the first Triple Crown winner in 1919, and Count Fleet in 1943 were part of three-horse fields in the Belmont.

Wishful thinking has Tanner pencil in Stargell twice

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

Chuck Tanner never thinks twice about putting Willie Stargell's name in the Pittsburgh Pirate line-up—but he's certainly never written his name in twice.

Until Friday night, that is.

The usually attentive Tanner blindly inserted Stargell into the lineup two times—in the fifth and seventh positions—prior to the game with the San Diego Padres.

And that opened Alvin Dark's eyes right away. The San Diego manager filed a protest, and was doubly insistent about it after Stargell himself blasted a three-run homer in the 11th inning for a 10-7 Pirate victory.

"That's one protest you cannot lose," boasted Dark, holding up his copy of the errant line-up card.

Tanner was a little embarrassed—but undefeated.

The fact of the matter was that Tanner meant to put Rennie Stennett in the No. 7 spot, not Stargell. Stargell drew a bases-loaded walk in the first inning and Bill Robinson followed with a two-run single to give the Pirates a 3-0 lead. Stennett then stepped up and hit into a double play.

"When he came to bat, Stennett substituted for Stargell," explained Dark. "So, we'll have to play the game over from that point with Stennett at bat and a pinch runner going in for Stargell."

There was less confusion in other National League games, as the Cincinnati Reds belted the Montreal Expos 13-1; the Chicago Cubs turned back the San Francisco Giants 3-1; the Houston Astros outscored the New York Mets 4-1; the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7 in 12 innings and the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-5.

Pittsburgh and San Diego were tied at 7-7 going into the Pirate 11th when Dave Parker and Al Oliver hit singles and Stargell smashed his 10th homer of the season over the wall in left-center.

Rollie Fingers, who pitched the last 41-3 inning, lost his second game in six decisions. The victory went to Rich Gossage, 5-2, who allowed one hit in the last four innings and retired the last 10 batters.

Cubs 3, Giants 1

Jerry Morales, Bobby Murcer and Larry Bittner each drove in a run and Rick Reuschel scattered four hits to lead Chicago over San Francisco. Reuschel, boosting his record to 8-2, retired 15 consecutive batters in one stretch and the only run he allowed was unearned.

Astros 4, Mets 1

Joaquin Andujar fired a two-hitter for his fifth straight victory as Houston snapped a four-game losing streak by beating New York. Andujar, 7-3, struck out four and walked three as he pitched his first complete game since April 9. Both hits off Andujar were singles by John Stearns, in the second and fifth. Jon Matlack, 3-7, suffered the loss.

Cardinals 8, Dodgers 7

Roger Freed's two-out single drove in the winning run in the bottom of the 12th inning, lifting St. Louis over Los Angeles. Freed, batting for winning pitcher Clay Carroll, 4-1, lashed his hit off Dodger left-hander Stan Wall, 1-2, following a double play by the Dodgers that appeared to have enabled Wall to escape the jam.

Phillies 7, Braves 5

Mike Schmidt drove in five runs with two homers and a single, powering Philadelphia over Atlanta. Schmidt's second homer of the game, his 11th of the season, was a three-run blast over the center field fence in the seventh inning, erasing a 5-4 deficit. It came off reliever Dave Campbell, 0-2, after singles by Jerry Martin and Larry Bowa.

Winkles replaces McKeon as Oakland manager

OAKLAND (AP) — Bobby Winkles, the 13th manager hired by Charlie Finley, said it came as "a total surprise" when he was offered the Oakland A's job.

Jack McKeon, awakened Friday morning by a long-distance "Dear Jack" phone call from Finley in Chicago, said his firing "came as a complete surprise to me."

Both men must have temporarily forgotten the track record of Finley, the baseball team owner who has changed managers 15 times in 18 years

(giving Alvin Dark and Hank Bauer two terms apiece.)

"I asked him what I had done wrong and he just told me he felt a change had to be made," said a bewildered McKeon, adding that the last time he heard from Finley, three days earlier, the owner said, "I'm really proud of the job you've done."

It seems that no one but Finley knows why the change was made. The owner said, "I'm not going to go into details. But I like Bobby Winkles' enthusiasm and knowledge of the game."

Higuchi, Little tied in LPGA Championship

NORTH MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — According to the Players' Guide of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, Chako Higuchi is viewed as a "superstar" in Japan.

Her counterparts on the American pro tour may learn before the weekend is out that's a pretty accurate summation of the golfing ability of Mrs. Higuchi — and it may cost them money to find it out.

The 31-year-old Japanese player was tied with South Africa's Sally Little going into today's second round of the LPGA Championship. She has won three LPGAs in Japan and as many Opens in that country.

After an opening round 71, Mrs. Higuchi fired at five-under-par 67 in Friday's second round for a 36-hole total of 138.

That was a reversal of Miss Little's performance — 67 in the first round and 71 Friday.

Thirty-four of the 99 pros who started the tournament definitely won't be there Sunday, or even today. They were eliminated after the second round in the cut of all those with 155 or over, which narrowed the field to 65.

Leads Memphis Classic

Geiberger breaks 'magic 50's'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — He's always been a shy, soft-spoken, self-effacing man and he seemed positively embarrassed about it all.

"I never thought I'd do it," Al Geiberger said.

"Now everybody will be shooting 59. If I can shoot 59, everyone can."

That seemed unlikely. It hadn't been done before. Until Geiberger strung together an improbable assortment of 11 birdies, an eagle and six pars on a sweltering hot, humid Tennessee Friday, no one in the long history of the American golf tour had ever shot a 59. Geiberger's 59 was 13 under par.

Of all the thousands and thousands of rounds played by Ben Hogan and Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen, Sam Snead and Byron Nelson, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf, no one had ever before broken into the magic 50s as a score for 18 holes of golf.

Geiberger did it in the second round of the $200,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic, playing 18 holes about as nearly perfect as is possible. He hit every fairway. He hit every green. He did not make bogey. He did not make a "5".

And this was on a course that is far

Little League action

Babe Ruth

Craigs and Girtons hooked up last night in a see-saw battle that took the teams to extra innings before Craigs could pull out a 9-8 win.

Girtons jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the second that was answered in the fourth by four Craigs runs.

Girtons made the score 5-4 in their favor on a Clark Lee home run in the fourth inning but Craigs tied the game to send it into extra frames.

In the eighth, Mike Eddlemon scored the winning run for Craigs as he walked, stole second and then raced home when the catcher threw the ball into center field.

Tom Shields started the game for Craigs and Eddlemon took the win. Lee started for Girtons.

Little League

In Washington C.H. Little League last night, Craigs beat the Loafers, 5-2, and the County Bank edged the Elks, 5-4.

In the major leagues, the Mustangers remained in first place with a 14-7 win over the Flashes and Downtown Drug came up with two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to down the Jets, 4-3.

In Jeffersonville, Fayette County Bank won the first round with a perfect 5-0 record, scoring their final win over Al's Shell, 13-3. Kevin Robinett won the game, limiting the losers to just two hits.

Woman drafted by New Orleans

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Lucia Harris Stewart, who led Delta State to three national women's basketball championships and a U.S. Olympic women's team to a silver medal, doesn't think she is National Basketball Association material.

Mrs. Stewart was picked by the New Orleans Jazz Friday in the seventh round of the NBA draft. She was graduated in May from Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss.

"Men are just naturally better...I'm not sure I could do it," she said in a telephone interview from her home in Cleveland. "I play pretty well on the women's level, but with the men, well, that's something different."

Cincinnati Reds sign Robert Potts

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have signed Robert Potts, their first-round choice in the secondary phase of baseball's recent draft.

Richard Lombardo, a 15th-round selection in the regular phase, also signed as did Kelly Becker, a 17th-round selection.

Bonds homer provides 1-0 margin

Tanana chalks up 10th win

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Frank Tanana just keeps rolling along. So does Ron Guidry...almost. Tanana, the California Angels' sensational left-hander, stayed virtually abreast of Denny McLain's 31-victory pace of 1968 Friday night, baffling the Cleveland Indians on two hits for his 10th victory and fifth shutout of the season.

He needed only one hit and Bobby Bonds provided it, slamming a second-inning homer for the 1-0 victory.

In New York, meanwhile, Guidry stumbled over his ninth-inning hex once again — but got one-pitch help from Sparky Lyle and the Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 4-1.

In the rest of the American League, Baltimore beat the Chicago White Sox 6-1, Toronto trimmed Seattle 4-3, Detroit defeated Oakland 6-4 and Milwaukee edged Kansas City 4-3. Texas at Boston was rained out.

At the start of the season, Tanana was saying he would win 30. But with the reality of the pressure building up, he's backing off a bit. "I don't think I can win 30 now. Maybe 20, 25," he said. "Do you think I can throw shutouts forever?"

Five of them at this point in the season is nothing to shrug off, seeing as it lowered his earned-run average to 1.84. In his only two losses this season California has been shut out, one of them by Dennis Eckersley's no-hitter in Cleveland.

Yankees 4, Twins 1
Guidry, given a healthy lead compliments of Willie Randolph's two-run double in the fourth inning and Chris Chambliss' RBI and theft of home in the fifth, was three outs away from a complete game when the ol' jinx struck for the fourth time this season.

"He had the same kind of trouble in the minors," said Manager Billy Martin. "He's pitched so many good games for us, but he keeps struggling in the ninth. I hoped he would get over it tonight."

Guidry was hardly heartbroken over his performance. "I think if I can pitch 81-3 every game, Billy would accept that," he said. "I was strong when I went out for the ninth. I said to myself, 'Forget that 81-3 inning stuff. You know you can get three more.'"

But he got only one. Lyle had to come on and, on his first pitch, feed a double-play ball to Jerry Terrell.

Orioles 6, White Sox 1

Doug DeCinces' bases-loaded double in the fifth inning was the icing on Mike Flanagan's cake. The Baltimore hurler five-hit Chicago, a remarkable turnaround for a member of the Orioles' mound crew in their first game after a long road trip.

Flanagan had been belted for five runs by the White Sox in Chicago last week.

Tigers 6, A's 4

Bobby Winkles, the newest pupil in Charles O. Finley's School of Revolving Door Managers, started out with a failing grade as Tito Fuentes drove in two runs with a pair of singles to help Detroit beat the A's.

The Tigers broke a 2-2 tie with in the fifth inning on RBI singles by Fuentes and Steve Kemp and got two more runs in the sixth on another single by Fuentes and an error by left fielder Mitchell Page. Wayne Gross hit his 13th and 14th homers of the season for Oakland.

Brewers 4, Royals 3

Cecil Cooper followed a seventh-inning single by ex-Royal Jim Wohlford with an opposite-field double down the

Milwaukee got a second-inning homer from Sixto Lezcano, Kansas City came back with three runs in the third, the Brewers got a run back in the fourth on Sal Bando's double and Von Joshua single, and tied it in the sixth on singles by Cooper and Lezcano and Bando's grounder.

Burning car yields remains of woman

HILLSBORO, Ohio — The body of a woman was found Friday in the trunk of a burning car parked along McMullen Road in western Highland County, just west of Dodsonville.

Highland County Sheriff Hugh Rogers said the discovery is under investigation. An autopsy has been ordered to determine the identity of the woman and how she died.

Rogers said a resident notified his office of the burning car at about 12:30 p.m. Friday. Rogers said the car was a 1967 model Chevrolet Impala.

Firemen from the Lynchburg Fire Department, summoned to extinguish the blaze, discovered the body in the automobile's trunk. Fire officials at the scene said the car was probably doused with gasoline, then set afire.

Highland County Coroner Dr. Paul Terrell said he was unable to determine the woman's age or how she died because of the condition of the body. He sent the body to the Hamilton County Coroner's Office for further examination.

The Ohio Bureau of Criminal Identification and Highland County Prosecuting Attorney Rocky A. Coss are participating in the investigation, Rogers said.

Mrs. Niehous remains believer

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Donna Niehous has assured her kidnaped American executive husband via a letter to a newspaper that she believes he is alive and everything is being done "to bring us together."

Her husband, William F. Niehous, 45, of Toledo, Ohio, was seized by left-wing guerrillas in Caracas on Feb. 27, 1976.

The letter, mailed from Mrs. Niehous' home in the Toledo suburb of Perrysburg, was published in Friday's edition of the independent Caracas daily El Nacional.

"To this day, I believe that you are alive," she wrote. "Be strong in your convictions, Bill, that all of us care, and are doing everything we can think of to bring us together as a family."

"From time to time, over the many months since your kidnaping, I have tried to communicate with you, in the only way I know, through the newspaper, to tell you how much we want your safe return, and how we wish we could do something to convince the men that are holding you that they should set you free."

"I am grateful to the newspaper for publishing this letter, but what can I say? there is so much to tell you. The boys are fine, you'll be very proud of them." The couple has three teen-aged sons.
